

Steve in NYC at room rented from friend Chris Ochoa. Tara stayed with Steve all night and he did not sleep, which she assumed was from large Adderall consumption, Tara went to breakfast with Steve at Lafayette restaurant in downtown NYC- he asked to leave right as the food arrived because he thought he was poisoned. Returned to apartment where Steve stated he had radioactive poisoning from his adderall. He had a device to test the adderall's radioactivity (reference video) where he stated a few pills were radioactive. Steve stated he need to go to the emergency room. Tara selected Bellevue Hospital due to mental health treatment, as Steve was clearly in a psychotic state from lack of sleep and adderall. Steve finally was admitted into the ER for his thought poisoning, where Tara informed attendants at front desk he struggled with drug abuse and had a current history of psychosis. Steve was brought to the mental health section of ER and was not considered a threat and released.

December 2017

Steve hired a professional security firm in San Francisco to guard his home and him. First private investigator he worked with told him after a few weeks he would no longer take his money as he needed other help.
